New for the 2011 Conference!

The Boss Pass

Each agency registering for the conference will receive 5 passes for Tuesday's vendor exhibits. The purpose is to get more activity on the exhibit floor and have the decisions makers available to talk directly with the vendors.

The Ohio Chapters thank the following vendors for conference support

A Public-Safety Communications Conference

Seminars for Telecommunicators, Administrators and Technicians

Many vendors displaying and demonstrating state-of-the-art communications equipment and services

Share your experiences, problems and solutions with your peers from around Ohio

The Ohio Chapters of APCO and NENA are again proud to co-host an Ohio Public Safety Conference. This year we are using the Wal-Mart business model and "rolling back" our prices. The conference committee is well aware of financial constraints facing every agency. To address these issues we have shortened the conference by one day and scheduled the start to allow attendees to arrive the morning of the conference and not miss anything. As a value added component we will issue "boss passes" to each agency so their bosses can attend the exhibits for free. We have negotiated an attractive conference room rate with the hotel. The early conference registration has been reduced to $50 per person! Booth prices for vendors are at the 2005 rate.

We anticipate an exciting and informative list of topical training sessions and a full room of exhibitors. Seminar topics and exhibits will include something for everyone in the public safety communications field. Participating vendors will display communications and dispatch products from local, regional, and national companies. The Double Tree - Worthington is located on I-270 at US23 and provides a plethora of off-conference time activities a short walk from the hotel. Please join us for an affordable, exciting and informative conference.

Both of the Ohio Chapters are looking forward to meeting you.
